

Eric Massey bio,

I was born in Wales in 1955. My step father served in the US Air Force for 24 years and as a consequence we moved to a new duty station every 4 years. Upon graduation of high school at Ellsworth AFB in South Dakota I enlisted in the US Navy. I served 6 years with 2 tours in Viet Nam.

I have always had a keen interest in the sciences particularly as it relates to agriculture. Upon my discharge from active duty I attended classes at Olympic college & the extension facility at the University of Washington. My focus was to pursue a degree in mycology & soil micro biology. At this time I met a young lady & we married soon after. We started a family and I went to work to support them, life happens while we make plans.

We moved to Kentucky where my family farm is, during that time I started working as a construction hand on a new championship 18 hole Golf Course. I spent 8 years there growing in the golf course and maintaining it as the Superintendent when I left. I spent 17 years as a GC Superintendent before going into sales. I have spent the last 22 years on a journey to discover the potential for agriculture with a focus on high quality food production.

I met Darin Moon & John Kelly from Redox chemicals in 2005, my life has not been the same since! I saw from them that we had similar drives & I immediately wanted to know more about these incredible products and the understanding that these two gentlemen had of soil chemistry. I have been a student of agronomy for 38 years. During this time I have discovered some truth, also some falsehoods. My goals however have not changed, I live my life in the pursuit of excellence in all the things I do. This includes the education pursuit & the return of investment for the distributors & growers that I work with. I focus my energies on solving agronomic problems and gaining a deeper understanding of my clients needs.

I have counseled growers & GC Superintendents & worked with researchers from Southern California to upstate NY and many places in between. I consider myself an extremely fortunate man to have been associated with many top people in their fields.

Redox has given me some of the greatest challenges and rewards of my professional career, I will be forever in the debt of Darin & John for giving me the opportunity to go beyond the vision I had of myself & accomplishing things I did not know were possible.

I am humbled by the greatness of the United States. I am a student of the U.S. Constitution, & grateful to the people for giving my family & I the opportunity for "life, Liberty, & the pursuit of happiness".

My Wife & I have made Michigan our home, we look forward to a long and prosperous relationship with new friends and old.

With Respect, Eric Massey
Redox AG, Agronomist